New Beginnings Midwifery is in search of a new midwife to join our fast-growing practice. We are currently a practice of 3 supportive midwives with hopes of expanding into two teams of two. We are looking for a midwife who is a team player, wants a good work/life balance, and is excited about helping our practice grow and flourish.

The practice is located in Prince George, BC, a vibrant city with a population of over 75 000 people. We are served by the large tertiary University Hospital of Northern BC, with 1500 deliveries annually. It has both obstetrical and pediatric coverage, in addition to a NICU that can provide care to newborns as young as 32 weeks. The maternity wing was renovated in 2007 and offers comfortable single room maternity care. There is also a large waterbirth tub in hospital and supportive policy around waterbirth. Our practice has a great relationship with the staff and feel extremely well supported by the maternity nurses, OBs, and pediatricians. Midwives are respected members of the maternity care team and given autonomy.

There is an over-abundance of work, as many outlying communities are no longer offering women the option to birth in their own communities and a number of GPs are now retiring. We carry a full, reasonable caseload with a diverse clientele.

Prince George is the vibrant northern hub of British Columbia, encompassing all the services you'd need in a big city, surrounded by gorgeous scenery and numerous outdoor activities. It is an affordable location for maintaining a healthy work-life balance and raising a family, with excellent cultural and educational opportunities. All of this is a short plane ride from Vancouver!

If you are a new registrant or a general registrant who is looking for a change and want to know more about us, than please feel free to contact me at judydmidwife@shaw.ca. All CVs can be forwarded to the same email.
